

DEAN BROWN

Dean Brown has spent his entire golf career at the Royal Regina Golf Club. He began playing as a junior member in high school and honed his golf game through hitting balls while working at the driving range.

Dean was a member of the 1995 Saskatchewan Willingdon Cup team which competed in Toronto. Later that year he started as an assistant professional at Royal Regina, becoming the head professional in 2011, his current position. Dean holds the course record of 61, achieved in 2001 before changes were made to the course as it is currently played.

As a professional player, Dean has been the Saskatchewan Zone Champion eight times between 2001 and 2018 as well as the Assistants' Champion nine times.

He has been the winner of many PGA of Canada - Saskatchewan Zone awards. The Scott Knapp Trophy for the Player of the Year is chosen by member voting and has gone to Dean Brown seven times between 2004 and 2017. The Frank Fowler award for the lowest stroke average in order-of-merit competitions went to Dean Brown in 2006 with 69.1 and was followed by wins in 2007, 2008, 2011, 2014, and 2017. The Peter Cushner Trophy for the leader of the Order of Merit went to Dean Brown in 2008, 2010, 2014, 2015, 2017. Dean has competed at the national level, with his best finishes being second and fourth.

As a member of the Board of Directors of the PGA of Canada – Saskatchewan Zone for the past six years he has contributed to his professional association.

Dean and his wife Jana have two boys who are active in hockey and soccer, as well as golf for the twelve-year-old.

Dean is still actively competing and has conducted himself as a true golf professional who is very respectful of the abilities of other competitors. In addition to having his name on trophies honouring Scott Knapp, Frank Fowler and Peter Cushner, he now follows these professionals into the Saskatchewan Golf Hall of Fame.
